

Battle of the Classics: Jen, Reece, and the LBD

The little black dress is one of the most timeless styles on the red carpet and although there was no actual red carpet this year, Jennifer Anniston and Reece Witherspoon reminded us how truly powerful the LBD is.

We all know the classic, little black dress and what better way to showcase this classic ensemble than for the 2020 Emmy Awards. Although this year things were different due to COVID-19, two of the most classic women in Hollywood still found ways to elevate this timeless piece. Jennifer Anniston took to the Emmy stage in a vintage Christian Dior bias cut dress, adorned with Neil Lane diamonds and beach waved hair to finish off her look.

Reese Witherspoon celebrated on her own lawn and wore a black Louis Vuitton dress that showcased the new sporty LV logo. A classic red lip, some jewelry by the French label, and her signature blonde lob was loosely curled finished off her look. Although Reese's look was good enough to get into Harvard Law, we think Jennifer Anniston took the title here for who wore the LBD best. Something about vintage Dior elevates how timeless and chic the Emmys are even if the world is in uncertain times.
